

Life after cardiac arrest; so far I seem to be immortal

A meeting for cardiac arrest survivors, families and professionals involved with their care

10-11 Carlton House, London SW1Y 5AH
Saturday 18th November, 9.30am

- How do we identify people at risk of sudden cardiac arrest?
- How do we treat people who suffer a sudden cardiac arrest?
- How can we help when sudden cardiac arrest strikes in the community?
- What does it feel like to take lifesaving action when you witness a cardiac arrest?
- How does it feel to survive cardiac arrest? How do individuals and families cope? What support is there?
- How does the increase in the number of cardiac arrest survivors impact on the health service?

With the increase in awareness of sudden cardiac arrest, tools to identify and treat people at risk and the use of CPR and automated external defibrillators to resuscitate people who suffer this cardiac emergency, more people are surviving. The 'Life after cardiac arrest; so far I seem to be immortal' conference speaks about this, together with challenges facing people affected, their families and the health service; demonstrating a need for a holistic approach.
